

ABSTRACT

[42] A food product and a method for making the food product. The food product comprises a tortilla shell, typically having perforations therein, in which a cylindrical food product, such as a sausage link or frankfurter is tightly wrapped. The method includes heating, as by deep frying or on a roller grill, the novel food product.